A word from the editorial team,

A happy lunar rabbit new year to one and all!

This editor must confess that he has indulged a little too much in this festive season! What a blissful long 4 day holiday weekend we've all had! Pineapple tarts, love letters, bak kwa, those small lovely pastries... Throw in the quintessential reunion steamboat dinner – its been an absolute gastronomical feast! Not to mention, we've our very own CMG steamboat just round the corner!

Of course, the festive season isn't all about eating... (though to many Singaporeans it certainly is!) Its been wonderful to catch up with relatives that you only see once a year or when there's an event! I know all you nay-sayers out there are panning the “superficial” small talk that we all make when we meet and wish each other happy new year. But that's what makes us special as God's creations! We value and treasure our kinship, our relationship, our ties... Its this common love for each other that sets us apart as Catholics

Speaking on the topic of Catholicism, I'm pleased to introduce our Resident Muse, who will be penning his inaugural article in this month's Doctor's Blog submission. Don't forget to catch his article dwelling on the dress sense of Catholic Sunday church-goers! (certainly a news-gripping affair, judging by recent newspaper reports..)

We leave you with random photos of the festive CNY celebrations from our photographer on the ground! =)
